

Thought you were a looking glass
But you hid all you meant to reflect
And you hurt what you promised to protect
I wish I could fix you but I can't

I have her now
And I'll never let her be alone again
And you, you'll never really leave me
But I don't belong to you or the wolves at my door

I don't want to go to the bullfight
Don't, don't, please don't make me go
Maybe I'm made to maim
But it's my choice alone whose blood will paint these stones

Oh, my rage belongs to me
And I, I'll never be alone again
And you, you never really loved me
I don't belong to you or the wolves at my door

Oh my love
Oh my angel
How I've wept
How I've seethed for you

I've grown coarse and befanged
Pacing in the night
Turning over and over
Trying to set it right
But I, I'll never uncrack the vase
And I, I'll never get us out of this place

But I, I, I, I have her now
And I'll never let her be alone again
And you and I are severed evermore
You'll always be on the other side of that door
