The Screaming Jets

They issued a warning about the global warming and they said "You better spin the name
The number one gazette you better comply boy. Hey, you wanna play the game?
I've got the answers to the questions that the people been asking
Out around their tables in their cities on the satellite"

I've got no time, that's my alibi
You said you wanna change the world, but you haven't got the guts to try
I don't want, I don't want, I don't wanna die
I've got no time

So many clandestine eyes in the land and the skies, hey, you said, you wanted everything
Supersize fries give you supersize thighs now, you said, you wanted everything
I've got the answers to the questions that the people been asking
Send it through the cables of the cities on the satellite

I've got no time, that's my alibi
You wanna save the world, but you don't know how to try try try
I don't want, I don't want, I don't wanna die
I've got no time, I'm sticking to my alibi

Not too pretty to die...

You've got everything you want and you still want more
Your million dollar home and your ten dollar whore
You've got everything you want and you still want more, every little thing
You still want more, but the world's got nothing more to give

You say you wanna save the world, but you never even pretend to try it
I don't want, I don't want, I don't wanna die
But I don't give a shit, that's my only alibi

They issued a warning about the global warming and they said "You better spin your name"
And the clandestine eyes in the land and the skies, better play my game. Better play that game
