

Gone

The Script

Is this a nightmare?
Say it's all a dream
Tell me in the morning you'll be here with me
I'll even pray
Just show me where to kneel
Anything to try to numb this pain I feel

Gone too soon
But you made one hell of a exit
The world ain't the same since you left it

Like a shooting star across the sky
In a second you were gone
Why do stars that light up twice as bright
Only burn for half as long
Then it's gone

I like to think you finally found some peace
And wherever you are, just save a seat for me
I'll be right there when my time comes
So pour a drink 'cause I'll need one
We'll raise some hell up in heaven

Like a shooting star across the sky
In a second you were gone
Why do stars that light up twice as bright
Only burn for half as long
Then it's gone

Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone

People think I'm talking to myself, but I'm talking to you
On the nights that I get lost, I'm thinking "What would you do?"
Always said if I made it, I'd make it with you
Only one person on the stage now, but it feels like, feels like two

Like a shooting star across the sky
In a second you were gone
Why do stars that light up twice as bright
Only burn for half as long
Then it's gone

Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone, then it's gone
Gone, gone, gone
Then it's gone
