

Side By Side

The Shires

I didn't know
Oh, when we met that night
Where this would go
And after all this time, you're still mine

You said hello
I got those butterflies
You felt like home
Something so right in your eyes

Starting to believe that we were always meant to be

When I realise if every heart was a star in the sky
What are the chances you and I would be side by side?
And I could never count the millions of miles in the world, but somehow
What are the chances you and I would be side by side?

So many faces
So many paths to cross
Of all the places
Somehow we found us
We found us

Starting to believe that we were always meant to be

When I realise if every heart was a star in the sky
What are the chances you and I would be side by side?
And I could never count the millions of miles in the world but
somehow
What are the chances you and I would be side by-

(Woah)
Must be more than just right place right time, baby
(Woah)
To be laying with you right here, right now
In your arms tonight

When I realise every heart was a star in the sky
What are the chances you and I would be side by side?

somehow
What are the chances you and I would be side by, side by side?
