Tender Years

The Statler Brothers

You keep saying you love him I believe that it's true And it just doesn't matter how much I love you But in time your'll understand dear when you shed a tear Then you'll know you were living in your tender years In your eyes there's a love light that shines just for him But how long will it stay there will that love light grow dim You can just see the happiness you can't see the tears It's true cause you're living in your tender years If I can't be your first love I'll wait and be your last I'll be somewhere in your future to help you forget your past And you'll know that I love you with the love that's sincere Cause I'll wait till you're through living in your tender years And you'll know that I love you with the love that's sincere
