

Movin' On

The Tossers

Well, I always remember, I never forget the memory of you and things I regret Replies that I wish that I could retract, but it's times when I'm no help at all But time is a matter of life and death, such a short span, a final breath
Well I never liked witnessing anyone hurt, but it's just that I die to myself

Well you don't know what you think til you say it, well it could be brilliant or you could regret it
But the rest of the world most certainly moves on even if you have done someone wrong, wrong, oh, the rest of the world moves on

Well I've walked the line and I've come undone, and I've been a good friend to many or one And kindness I intend to carry it on, but it was harder and I just wasn't as strong It's so hard being here without you,
I want to say things only to you, saying goodbye for now because I need to move Cause the rest of the world moves on

Well you don't know what you think til you say it,
well it could be brilliant or you could regret it
But the rest of the world most certainly moves on
even if you have done someone wrong, wrong, oh, the rest of the world moves on

Well I've never been happy with myself, I needed change and I needed help
But I have helped others and I've changed their mood, and their lives I've seen 'em go on

Well you don't know what you think til you say it,
well it could be brilliant or you could regret it
But the rest of the world most certainly moves on
even if you have done someone wrong, wrong, oh, the rest of the world moves on
