Begin Again

The Veils

It's the road you laid
That made you blind
It's just a hollow name
We'll leave behind

Well, to coin a phrase
Is just a waste of time
With all that disgrace
Laying in your mind

We're all just following the light of long-dead stars

It's the acid rain
Sent from above
And it's the joy and pain
You'll grow to love

It's the sweetest thing
You'll never know
And the truth will sting
And so it goes

So hard just following the light of long-dead stars

And to begin again
To feel it all
But to feel no pain
When I do fall

And see the face of God
In the roaring flames
Know death from above us
Is death all the same

We're all just following the light of long-dead stars
