Did Ya Think

The Veronicas

She asked if you could stay did ya think about me when you almost turned away did you think about me when you picked up the phone should have let it just ringing And made it seem like everything was the same as it had always been

Did ya think about me being half awake and crying, Lying on the floor and waiting for the break of day Didn't think about tearing me apart, At any moment in the night you could have tried to make it right. why, why, why?

Now in an after thought were you thinking about me Don't know what you did it for Cause you were thinking about you, so you want me to believe you were thinking about me It isn't hard for me to see you didn't stop for anything

How bout me being half awake and crying Lying on the floor and waiting for the break of day Didn't think about tearing me apart, At any moment in the night you could have tried to make it right.

Give me one good reason why in time i should believe in you you had me, you had it, everything So close your eyes and remember all those lies that you never say when you pretend that you will be with me again

Did ya think about me being half awake and crying, Lying on the floor and waiting for the break of day Didn't think about tearing me apart, At any moment in the night you could have tried to make it right. why, why, why?

Did ya think about me being half awake and crying, Lying on the floor and waiting for the break of day Didn't think about tearing me apart, At any moment in the night you could have tried to make it right. why, why, why?