

Big Boots

The Wedding Present

I know you've put those big boots on because they're kind of scary
You're an Amazon, you're a mercenary And your boyfriend's gone but I'm still far too wary of you
I don't know why because my body's aching You only have to sigh and, well, my hands start shaking Oh I've got to try because my heart is breaking in two It's just that I don't know what to do

You scare me stiff
You scare me stiff

You like to play, it's true, that's why you're always winning Well I could do that too, just let me start at the beginning Because I'm just as good as you when my head isn't spinning like this Because you don't know me, there is no reason why you should do
But there are things I've got to see and if you want to come you could do You say that you agree but if I walk away now would you be sad
Or would you just think: "That's too bad"?

You scare me stiff
You scare me stiff
You scare me stiff
You scare me stiff
