TheOvertunes

Rain is heavy
And there stands the rainbow
But where does it end?
The brightness of day
So quickly forgotten
When the night comes to us

I try to find a hope for the future
With a look to your eyes
Yet only fading dreams
And remnants of glow that I see

Are you hiding a tear?
Don't be so scared to fear
'Cause I'll stay with you

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the waters, through the valleys
To the hill, and to the sky, into the sun
I will stay with you

Life is a journey
That reveal no real ending
It seemed pointless to me
When I first met you
Everything changes
Still the questions remain

Are you hiding a tear?
Are you still scared to hear?
That she won't stay with you

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the waters, through the valleys
To the hill, and to the sky, into the sun

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the fire, through the pain
To the desert, and the rain
I'll hope you'll stay

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the waters, through the valleys
To the hill, and to the sky, into the sun

In times of trouble, and in pain, I'll stay with you
In grief and sorrow, I'll be there, I promise you
And all I am and all I have is yours
So take my hand, I will always stay with you

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the waters, through the valleys
To the hill, and to the sky, into the sun

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the fire, through the pain
To the desert, and the rain

I'll always stay

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the waters, through the valleys
To the hill, and to the sky, into the sun

Through the mountains through the forest
Through the fire, through the pain
To the desert, and the rain
I'll always stay, I will stay with you
