

Acid Rain

Thomston

When you fell
From the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to wash our clothes
Baby we got soaked
When you fell
From the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes, drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain

There's a drought in California
The weeks turned into months my dear
And I'd wait up all night for you
The minutes turned into fucking years
And I see it through a skylight from a mile away, a mile away
I replay all the highlights from a different state, a different state

When you fell
From the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to wash our clothes
Baby we got soaked
When you fell
From the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes, drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain

I filled my cup from the tap
I let my sips overlap
I let the sink overflow
I drink it down 'til I'm bounced
And I feel like I can't be honest
About anything I want it
Cause it's haunting with memories
Without even talking and I pray
For a drought again
Yeah I pray, for them adjuncts
Though when I'd give anything
To just take back the love that I've misplaced in you

When you fell
From the sky
We all stopped and stood outside to wash our clothes
Baby we got soaked
When you fell
From the sky
I felt that burning in my eyes, drove me insane
I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain

I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain
I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain
I thought that you were holy water but you were just acid rain
