Carry The Weight

Thousand Below

I'm living in a gray scale, what am I seeing.
Learn to love the pressure, that caving feeling.
Cause I know it all too well, tell me please.
Tell me do you trust in everything you, everything you see.

I'd rather die than see you carry my weight one second.
How to walk the line between the levels of hell and heaven.
Don't hold me up because I'm bound to let you down.
Just get away, make the distance.
(Make the distance.)

Are you following along, do you get me.
Stay away, though don't forget me.
Wondering if they even notice.
Me washing away like the ocean.
Left on the shoreline.
Can't do this alone, but really I don't think I'm worth the tim e.
Tell me that you promise you'll just get away.
I won't drag you down all at the cost of me.

I'd rather die than see you carry my weight one second.
How to walk the line between the levels of hell and heaven.
Don't hold me up because I'm bound to let you down.
Just get away, make the distance.
(Make the distance.)

I'd rather die than see you carry my weight one second.
