

Like Apple Trees

ThouShaltNot

Hiding something, love
You're hiding something behind your grin
So let me in before the rainy season starts again
Tell me something, love
Oh tell me anything
Reveal your hand
Show me what makes you glow
Like apple trees, like Tokyo
So please

Ask before this moment fades
Fast before I ask the same
'Cause if we don't, I think we know
This room will burst, it will explode
Though every word is overload
Don't let this moment

Go ahead and speak until the world ends
Time has reversed
Now we are children and our eyes could swallow galaxies
Floating weightless, we are floating worldless
You walk a spiral across this buzzing sky
A language born of fire and butterflies

Ask before this moment fades
Fast before I ask the same
'Cause if we don't, I think we know
This room will burst, it will explode
Though every word is overload
Don't let this moment go

Hiding something, love
You're hiding something behind your grin
So let me in because I'm hiding something too, and it's the same thing
I'm just like you
The world is new
And we'll be colliding with forever when you speak

Ask before this moment fades
Fast before I ask the same
'Cause if we don't, I think we know
This room will burst, it will explode
Though every word is overload
