Fire and Ice

Thunderstone

Every time I see the sun go down
I can feel the fear that's all around
Knowing there won't be another soul for me
Talking to myself. Telling all the lies.
It will be alright, I will survive
Just need a sign to make me believe

And when the clock strikes midnight
I can hear your voice calling my name

Through the endless years I still have the drive
Never thought that I could be alive
To see, feel you again

And when the clock strikes midnight
I'm still awake and finally realize

Ooh you're my fire and ice
My pleasure and pain that I'm keeping inside
Crushing me down while taking me higher.
You are the fuel that inspires
Ooh you're my fire and ice
Salvation, damnation it's all in your eyes
The pain that I feel, the love I desire
Will you set me free?

I'm on the verge, I'm going to fall
The separation kills me, slowly from the core

And when the clock strikes midnight
I shed tears of joy and sorrow
