Thy Art Is Murder

The rain came down when I embarked
As the rivers drowned two worlds apart
It remains
In the cavern of the heart
A soul set sail under barren sky
Drifting past the gaze of the ancient eyes
I remain
In the absence of your light
A fury greater than that of the sea
A rage to silence all serenity
Horizons of hope
Now a drowning memory
Descension to the ocean deep
I have called for you, will you answer me?
My Bermuda
Ever swallowing

I remain in the absence of your light

Know that I searched for you
Know that I yearned for you
I remain
In the absence of your light
