Undressed

Not aware of what you've buried You feel comfotable that way You're living in a smaller world That is sometimes far too small Then you'll come to me Asking to share my world with you And maybe sometimes I do But never again for my own sake

The girl opened her mouth I opened my veins The girl opened her heart I opened a door to another world

I opened a door to another world

I opened a door to the entirety I opened a door to the entirety

Lonely in a cell I still hear the voices of the wind And rule at times great areas Greater than you'll ever know This moment leaves no time to think The past is always limited But in my dreams dwells everything And never again shall I let you in

The girl opened her mouth I opened my veins The girl opened her heart I opened a door to another world

I opened a door to another world

I opened a door to the eternity I opened a door to the eternity Tiamat