Last Train

Tiësto

You were on the way to changing all I know
You and all the stars are making my heart glow
Send me in tonight and free my heart and soul
Tried to stay awake to see the first eyed break
This is all i ever could need to make the most of it
Falling into everything, holding onto one another
Trying to get along in this world full of consequence
Falling into everything, holding onto one another

You're on the last train home again
The last train home again
This is the last song played in vain
The last song played in vain

You're on the last train home again
The last train home again
This is the last song played in vain
The last song played in vain

Waiting for a sign to lead me down your road
Walking through the ancients wondering where to go
Thinking of the way we whispered when we woke
Light up all the sky and know my warm embrace
This is all i ever could need to make the most of it
Falling into everything, holding onto one another
Trying to get in this world full of consequence
Falling into everything, holding onto one another

You're on the last train home again
The last train home again
This is the last song played in vain
The last song played in vain

You're on the last train home again
The last train home again
This is the last song played in vain
The last song played in vain
