

Daylight Savings

Tiny Ruins

Rhythm was all wrong
Panic set in like the kitten in the car
Mechanical bodies they shake and they start
And I realize this one's mine
It was only time

Mornings joke of daylight savings
I'm still falling, falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time

I built a house
Shirtsleeves and flax and a litter of gold stars
It was the prettiest thing I ever made
And is it only time?

Mornings joke of daylight savings
I'm still falling, falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time

Your knowing smile as you swing on the gate
Those leaves wind behind you
I'm still trying to find you every night
Is it only time?

Mornings joke of daylight savings
I'm still falling, falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time
Falling, falling, falling every time