Watchmaker

To Kill a King

We stared at the glass ignoring the sand
Time was ticking, we made jokes with our reflections
Bending only hands and feet, smiling with our crooked smiles
Time was ticking but we payed it no mind

And now
You were always going to save me
And now
I didn't know what from [?]

If you OD, I would OD too
What a funny thing to say to describe the way you feel
If you OD, I would OD too
What a funny thing to say to describe the way you feel
To describe the way you feel

We bathed in the dirt to know know what we're worth
Time was ticking but we payed it no mind
Holding only education, holding only lofty thoughts
Time was ticking but we stayed loyal

And now
You were always going to save me
And now
I didn't know what from [?]

If you OD, I would OD too
What a funny thing to say to describe the way you feel
If you OD, I would OD too
What a funny thing to say to describe the way you feel
To describe the way you feel

Albert said he always should have been a watchmaker
As things went they were out of his control
Albert said he always should have been a watchmaker
As things went they were out of his control
Albert said he always should have been a watchmaker
As things went they were out of his control
Albert said he always should have been a watchmaker
As things went they were out of his control
