

Never Let a Day Go By

Todd Snider

Now if I am not mistaken and I may well be
But it's a fine line between reason and absurdity
Like addictions to prescriptions to perceptions of reality
We are fractions of equations of illusions of duality

So never let a day go by
Never
Never let a day go by
Never

We have been divided by infinity
Pomp and circumstantially
Racially religiously physically financially
Minority majority citizen authority
And there is no time like eternity
To get to where you would rather be

Never let a day go by
Never
Never
Never
Never
