

Tomorrow

Todrick Hall

We were just two stones
Pretending maybe we could be diamonds
Just two wrongs praying that we could be the right ones
And two seas whose ships never made it to the ocean
And two thieves who ran away with stolen emotions

No we can't take back words we've spoken
Your bags are packed, doors wide open
And we both know we've reached the end
But baby can we please pretend?

So can we dance like this until the sun comes up?
No I don't need your kiss, just wanna feel your touch
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow
No I won't change your mind
So I won't even try
You've got my love for life
Just give me yours tonight
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow

We were just too young
And living just a little too reckless
And too drunk in love to find our way through the wreckage
Too hit songs that never found their way to an album
And two hills, mmm, who wanted desperately to be mountains

No we can't take back words we've spoken
Your bags are packed, doors wide open
And we both know we've reached the end
But baby can you please pretend?

So can we dance like this until the sun comes up?
No I don't need your kiss, just wanna feel your touch
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow
No I won't change your mind
So I won't even try
You've got my love for life
Just give me yours tonight
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow
To break my heart
Oh, to break my heart

Heartbreaks don't care much for timing
And in our case there's no silver lining
It's just too late, no tears left for crying
Until the dawn breaks and I spend the night in your arms
The night in your arms

So can we dance like this until the sun comes up?
No I don't need your kiss, just wanna feel your touch
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow
No I won't change your mind

So I won't even try
You've got my love for life
Just give me yours tonight
Can you wait until tomorrow?
Baby wait until tomorrow
To break my heart