I'm so bored o'the bad news in my timeline
People claimin' that it's their time, it's my time
Most of these dummies would fall apart without Wi-Fi
No computers to hide behind with the white lies

Someone tell me what they postin' for
You addicted to the likes or do you actually oppose the war?
Y'all so desperate for attention, I ignore the phone
And pray y'all find a real life location you can go explore

We celebrate with people who we hardly know
A hundred "Happy Birthday"s from a stranger ain't a party, though
Tik-Tok is try-hards and Twitter is the Cardi show
I know it's entertainin' but it's messin' up our cardio

Unplug, it's a drug for the young one's Everybody tryna sell something to someone
Too many influencers feelin' like they "the ones"
Long as the subs and the funds come

Y'all need God
Y'all need nature
Y'all need love
No screensavers

Y'all need dogs
Y'all need neighbors
Y'all need hugs
No screensavers

I'm so bored o'the clickbait and the screen time
What ever happened to some good old family time?
These little kids got a iPhone since knee high
We all stuck in fast forward, need to rewind

Silicon Valley got the world in they palm
The more that we scroll, the further we gone, turn it off
Got these nerdies actin' gangster on the internet
Sippin' on a Diet Coke, smokin' on a cigarette

Where the trolls at? Messin' up our sleep at night
I swear to God I never see these fuckin' punks in real life
Y'all don't get no real likes, it's paid for you hatin', though
We compare the views to the comments when you make a post

That's called a ratio, you fakin' it, yeah we know
The drug you're takin' publicly is nothin' but a placebo
Too many influencers under the influence
You a human bein', dawg, go and do some shit

Y'all need God

Shut down and go outside
Swipe up and close the app
You need to see the sky
You need to touch the grass

Don't need a million likes
Don't need to follow back
Y'all need some Jesus Christ
Throw your phone in the trash

Y'all need God
Y'all need nature
Y'all need love
No screensavers
