

Why Now?

Tom MacDonald

Why now, after everything that we built together, did you decide to leave?

And why now, in front of everyone, did you begin to run? Following your heart I guess

And why now is everything so strange?

I can't seem to explain why it's over so fast

And I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me

I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you, in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me

Why does everywhere I look and everything I taste put me right back in a place with you?

I feel so divided, I think when you left a part of me decided to head out on the road with you, and now it's gone with you

And I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me

I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you, in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me

I don't wish you nothing but the best, with all that I have left

I'm pulling for you

And I feel so unusual, the places that I go to get drunk and forget just remind me of you, and all I can do is wait

And I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me

I feel so uneasy still bein' in love with you, in love with you

I feel so unlike myself and to tell the truth

I know that you're better without me
