Toothgrinder

I lost my home
You know I'll never, ever save you now
You left me all alone (the possibilities)
The city by the sea (you once could set me free)

It's all my fault
I know I'll never, ever save you now
Forget about my home (and the possibilities)
The beauty and the beast (it's what you meant to me)

I'm proud to say anything
To let you know, to let it go
I'm ready to lose everything
To show you how, I need you so

We're on our own

Let me take you back in time where are hearts played out
With a bottle of jack and a lust attack with our sins and doubts
Give me space, give me time, give me all you need
In the back of my car when were staring at the stars through a fogged out scene
We're cats in a cradle, it must be fatal
The way our tongues collide despite all the bullshit spewed in a rom-
com scene
Can you tell that I'm head over heels though?
Well we wait for the part where I'm throwing out darts and I lose everything for the free-throw

I'm proud to say anything
To let you know, to let it go
I'm ready to lose everything
To show you how, I need you so

Drown me in
A tortured core
With whiskey and words
A crow was born

Drown me in
A tortured core
With whiskey and words
A crow was born

We're on our own

I'm proud to say anything
To let you know, to let it go
I'm ready to lose everything
To show you how, I need you so
