My Promise

Tourniquet

Just a boy, you will not remember half
The things you're going through right now
How can I explain to you things don't Always go the way you want them to
I know you feel confused

Your mother never wanted this for you
She did her best but that he wouldn't do

You and I are brought together now by Wedding vows, vows that I have also made to you

Flesh and blood though we are not
I will love you as my own
Now God's love is all we've got Together we can build a home

All I want for you it to remember this
Never will I turn my back on you
This world will lie to you and take you for a ride
How can I protect you from this path
Only God can show you that the lights in life burn fast
Never forsake you precious days of youth

I promise I will do my best for you
Listen to me and I will listen too
