If The Fall Don't Kill You

Travis Tritt

They'd been high school sweethearts
Since they were just fifteen
A storybook beginning with the wedding of their dreams
Consumed by his ambition he soon left her at home
With a promise and an empty house
And too much time alone

Her boredom turned to drinking and drinking turned to lies And he let her get too far gone before he realized And you wouldn't recognize them
If you'd known them way back when
'Cause now the flame of love's burned out
And can't be lit again

And it's the same old story
You've heard a thousand times
Somebody's trust gets broken
You try walking a tightrope
But it's all uphill
And if the fall don't kill you
Lord, the heartbreak will

Two more childhood sweethearts in a small town far away Committed to each other since before their wedding day This will last forever that's what the whole town said But there are some temptations
That can turn a good man's head

She was unexpeced when she came home from town
She never even noticed all the window shades pulled down
And though he begged forgiveness
She turned and ran away
With the image of betrayal that time just can't erase

And it's the same old story You've heard a thousand times Somebody's trust gets broken Somebody's left behind You try walking a tightrope But it's all uphill And if the fall don't kill you Lord, the heartbreak will

And it's a sad old benediction to a wasted slice of life And there's an overwhelming price you've got to pay It's a losin' proposition and it cuts just like a knife You can't expect the hurt to go away

And it's the same old story
You've heard a thousand times
You try walking a tightrope
But it's all uphill
And if the fall don't kill you
Lord, the heartbreak will

And if the fall don't kill you Lord, the heartbreak will Oh yeah
