

Beer With Dad

Trevor Jackson

Sometimes I roll my window down
And let the wind roll right down my face
I try to feel my feelings
But sometimes they just feel so far away

He would always say "Son, you can love just a little bit more
And worry just, just a little bit less
It can help to get it off of your chest"
'Cause life has been a lot for me as of late
I've got so much on my plate
I know a thing that'll set me straight
A beer with dad

We talk about the good times
And laugh about the bad
The best therapy I've ever had
Was over a beer with dad
We'll talk about the drama
That led him to my momma
I know I'd be just fine
If I could have just one more beer with dad

I'd tell him that I made some changes in my life
Like how the girlfriend that he met turn into a wife
And now our first son just turned five
Now he's turning twenty-one, he's just begun
I wish you could see how far he's come
When he don't know where to go, I
I tell him what you told me, I

I say son "Son, you can love just a little bit more
And you can worry just a little bit less
It can help to get it off of your chest"
And then he says "Pops, it's been a lot for me as of late
I've got so much on my plate"
I said "I know a thing that'd set me straight
A beer with dad"

We'll talk about the good times
And laugh about the bad
Some of the best times I've ever had
Was over a beer with dad
We'll talk about the drama
That led me to your momma
I promise we'll be just fine
After you have just one beer with dad

Hey, just one
One day you're gonna have a son and say
"It's all gonna be okay" yeah yeah
When he has a beer with dad

You talk about the good times
And laugh about the bad
Some of the best times he'll ever have
Is over a beer with his dad
And when you talk about the drama

That led you to his momma
It'll all be just fine
