Pick A Side

Trevor Jackson

I just want someone to hold me down like Coretta King
Every time she look at me, I know she hear the heaven sing
But they just want a piece of me, no, they don't want my everything
Thought you'd stick around for worse or for better things
I guess I was wrong and that shit was conditional
Said you don't want fame but your past is habitual
Girl, we ain't the same stop comparing that shit pitiful
When I walk into a room, they all salute the General

It's hard to pick a side between love and war
But don't that mean we're doing it right
I know I rock the boat, but baby, stay on board

Who can say? Who can say?
Who can say that they never been in love like this?
Who can say? Who can say?
Who can say they found someone that wanna have their kids?
Who can say that they never-ever-ever-ever-ever wanna give this up? Who?
They found somebody that they really trust
Gon' love them through the downs and ups, yeah

I know you got a lot of things you bring to the table, must've forgot
Bitch, I am the table
And and I am the house, in the car, in the cable
I brought you comfort and support, I kept you stable

Don't you dare underestimate the stability
We had synergy, baby, are you kidding me?
You brought out the kid in me
If you leave now, what a waste of time and energy, yeah

It's hard to pick a side between love and war
But don't that mean we're doing it right
I know I rock the boat, but baby, stay on board

Who can say? Who can say?
Who can say that they never been in love like this?
Who can say? Who can say?
Who can say they found someone that wanna have their kids?
Who can say that they never-ever-ever-ever-ever wanna give this up? Who?
They found somebody that they really trust
Gon' love them through the downs and ups, yeah

I know you got a lot of things you bring to the table, must've forgot

I miss my little lady and I know I'm talking crazy
'Cause it's hard to pick aside between love and war
But don't that mean we're doing it right?
