

Hammer

Troy Cartwright

There's a "screw" followed by a "you"
Followed by a "Damn, you've done it this time, here's what I'm gonna do"
And there's a door bein' slammed
Followed by gravel kickin' up from the back of a black Trans Am

Yeah, and that's a hammer, that's a heavy blow
That's a nine-
pound comin' down on a "Never should've let her go"
And that's a killer, put her hurt down deep
When a devil-red dust cloud risin' up's all you see
Yeah, that's a hammer

There's a bag and an axe to grind
In a backseat, she left everything else behind
And there's hell, and there's how I feel
And there's a poundin' in my head and a bed that's cold as steel

Yeah, and that's a hammer, that's a heavy blow
That's a nine-
pound comin' down on a "Never should've let her go"
And that's a killer, put her hurt down deep
When a devil-red dust cloud risin' up's all you see
Yeah, that's a hammer

This ain't no note that she left behind
This ain't no tear fallin' from her eyes
It's the fire in the words of a last goodbye

That's a hammer, that's a heavy blow
That's a nine-
pound comin' down on a "Never should've let her go"
Yeah, and that's a killer, put her hurt down deep
When a devil-red dust cloud risin' up's all you see
Yeah, that's a hammer
Uh
