

Center Frame

True North

Tail lights glow, staring at the road
Can't hear what you've been saying
You're giving me that look
Like I've been on my high horse
And I still can't see the truth

We both know that I've made my bed
When I'm all alone she said

Keep all my bruises center frame
The body that I've sewn
Drown in my own sadistic pain
The only path I've known

There's a heart I've kept so cold
An empty that I've grown
I'm trying not to show
Cause I can't justify who I've become
And keep pretending I can keep it up or I'll Push you away until you'll never see
I was the person that you thought I was, I just

Keep all my bruises center frame
The body that I've sewn
Drown in my own sadistic pain
The only path I've known

Setting fire to a eulogy
Realizing what it meant to me
Setting fire to a eulogy
Memorizing what it meant to me
