See how the gently fallen snow melts in my hand
Disappearing until nothing is left... like it was never there
Doesn't it seem like the most important things are the most fragile
We can't hold onto them, they just drift quietly away

In a distant, faraway corner of the universe
The two of us met by chance
I want to call it a miracle, this feeling
And I want you alone to know

But I'm no good at saying what I really want to say
Wandering, searching..that's how I've lived
Now, I think I've found my one and only light
But if I try to pursue it, it will only run away..the future is undecided

While stopping along the way over and over again
We've shared smiles and tears alike
You and I have made this journey
And that's the only truth of which I am certain

When rain falls, I'll be the umbrella that covers you
When the wind blows, I'll be the wall that shields you
And however deep the dark of night
Tomorrow will surely come

The flowers that bloom in spring, and the sandy beaches of summer
An autumn evening, and a sunny spot in winter
However many seasons come and go
Our prayer will transcend even time and space

Far away.. (In a corner of the universe)
Far away.. (I think about you)
I want to call it a miracle, this feeling
And I want you alone to know

While stopping along the way over and over again
We share smiles and tears alike
Because this journey the two of us have made
Won't just fade away

When rain falls, I'll be the umbrella that covers you
When the wind blows, I'll be the wall that shields you
And however deep the dark of night
Tomorrow will surely come

I want to tell only you
That tomorrow will surely come
