Miss Meri

Two Gallants

I went down an empty lane, searching for a song Came back an empty man
My whiskers they hung long
Lord, they hung long

I guess I am your native son
Despite my queer disguise
But I keep all I can call my own
In the bags beneath my eyes, underneath my eyes

Oh, Miss Meri, don?t despair We got ways to numb your pain Same old story, blood sweat glory Just hope all your trials weren?t in vain

To all my so-called countrymen Who bless this stolen ground Is Jesus gonna pick you up When your hunger weighs you down? When it weighs you down

Mama, come and save me Nothing?s sacred anymore What good was living for?

And I been wondering just who misplaced my soul There?s pockets in my holes
And way out on the open plains, men pave beneath the sun The great suburban dawn, if you build it they will come Build it they will come, build it they will come

Oh, Miss Meri, don?t despair
We got ways to numb your pain
Same old story, blood sweat glory
I just hope all your trials weren?t in vain

I went down an empty lane, searching for a song Came back an empty man
My whiskers they hung long
Lord, they hung long, Lord, they hung long
