

Everything Will Be Alright

Tye Tribbett

Sometimes you hate waking up in the morning
You feel like nothing's changed since the night before
You see the same bills sitting there on the table
And no doubt the same food in the refrigerator
You say to yourself there's nothing in-store for this day
So what's the use of me waking up anyway

But hold your head up high, God is on your side
Just dry your eyes and know God's made a way
Be encouraged
Everything will be alright

So you finally get up and say I'll just ignore what I feel
So you get dressed, walk out the house, but you forgot
There's a boot on your wheel
Ladies and Gentlemen I understand what you feel when life gets like that
'Cause I've been there to and let me tell you, there ain't no p ain that hurts like that
But you've got to remember though your life seems unfair
That He won't put more on you than you can bear

But hold your head up high, God is on your side
Just dry your eyes and know God's made a way
Be encouraged
Everything will be alright

Alright, it will be alright
Alright, alright, alright
