

Gravity

Tyrone Wells

You could be the moon, I could be the sea
A million miles away, but still you're moving me
You could be the wind, I could be the tree
Flowing through my limbs, rushing over me
You could be the rooftop, I could be the basement
Shelter from the storm, I'll be your foundation
This how it's supposed to be, yeah
This how it's supposed to be

And even when world's apart
I feel you pulling on my heart
There's nothing I can do
Your gravity
It doesn't matter where I go
I feel it pushing through my soul
I know this much is true
Your gravity
Brings me back to you
Back to you, back to you
Your gravity

You could be the dancer, I could be the stage
Move me with your beauty, cover me with grace
You could be the freeway, I could be the night
We could get lost until the morning light
You could be the water, I could be the desert
Beggin on my knees, you can make it better
This how it's supposed to be, yeah
This how it's supposed to be

And even when world's apart
I feel you pulling on my heart
There's nothing I can do
Your gravity
It doesn't matter where I go
I feel it pushing through my soul
I know this much is true
Your gravity
Brings me back to you
Back to you, back to you
Your gravity

Without your love I'd just float away
Somewhere lost up in outer space
I am found when you're here with me
Safe and sound in your gravity

Without your love I'd just float away
Somewhere lost up in outer space
I am found when you're here with me
Safe and sound in your gravity

And even when world's apart
I feel you pulling on my heart
There's nothing I can do
Your gravity

It doesn't matter where I go
I feel it pushing through my soul
I know this much is true
Your gravity
Brings me back to you
Back to you, back to you
Your gravity

You could be the moon, I could be the sea
A million miles away, but still you're moving me
Your gravity
