The Keeper

UB40

I kiss the hand that holds my heart, so tender it's embrace
I kiss your eyes and read the love that's written on your face
I kiss the lips that kiss me back and take me to that place
Where loneliness and discontent are gone without a trace

I will be your comfort, whenever you're in pain
I will be your shelter, from the wind and rain
I will be your beacon, to guide you home again
And you will be the keeper of my heart

I love the one who holds my heart, she fills my world with ligh t
She makes a bright and sunny day, from dark and fear filled nig ht
She takes whatever's wrong for me and tries to make it right
So heartache pain and misery are gone without a fight

I will lift your spirit, whenever you are blue
I will be your constant, when no one else is true
I will always be the friend you need to get you through
And you will be the keeper of my heart
