

The Weight Around

Umphey's McGee

And when you come round lookin'
Don't expect a thing
Cause nothing here is sacred
Worth not remembering
There's not justifying burying your voice
All that I'm implying is hidden in the choice

I'm done with all the things that bring me down
Patch me up and roll me over
And you could say the same as me right now
Every wall will crumble down
The truth to self is always hard to tell
Check your habits at the door
Yours will be a face remembered well

The minute you remember I'll be where I was Apologizing often, it never seems enough

If the words could surface, I'd scream now
Let me be part of this plan
So I hope you're worth the wait around
If I'm not I understand
There's never been enough time to slow down
I promise more when I get back in town
