From The Outside

Under The Flood

Skies are opening
At the sight of you
A cold wind rushes through the room
But you barely move

Lead me down into
This uncomfortable truth
Lead me out into the rain

I can tell by the look on your face
And every inch of my heart starts to break

When I'm sinking again take me under
And I'm drifting away, I surrender
I'm in over my head
Caught under the flood again
And now, I'm left watching this world from the outside

Staring down an empty hall
Silent footsteps in the dark
Hanging on desperately between misery and tragedy

Slipped out with the tide
Into the bottomless night
Left out to survive

And I wonder why
Every inch of my heart feels this pain

When I'm sinking again take me under
And I'm drifting away, I surrender
I'm in over my head
Caught under the flood again

Take me down
I'm shattered and hopeless
Just leave me here to wash away

And take me now
(Sorry I really can't figure out what this line is)
Leave me to crash into the waves

You can tell by the look on my face
There's not an inch of my heart i can save

When I'm sinking again take me under
And I'm drifting away, I surrender
I'm in over my head
Caught under the flood again
And now, just leave me to wash away

When I'm sinking again take me under
And I'm drifting away, I surrender
I'm in over my head
Caught under the flood again
And now, I'm sinking again take me under

and I'm drifting away, I surrender
I'm left watching this world from the outside
