

Well, I think instead of viewing logic and emotion as something that-two things that are working together, I think of them sort of as separate identities, separate parts of me
As if they're sort of against each other

Skincare, said I'd try some months ago
Couldn't make up my mind but I guess we've all Been there, can my voice of reason help me out
Give me something to distract me from the texture of my hair
And I wish my shoulders weren't so wide
And I wish I wasn't terrified
You're both in control so you can both decide
Maybe this time we'll reach a compromise