Bird 1

Underworld

Bat bit and ten (?)
White stick with a red light
Floats past her on the right
White stick on the rock
Roping in the wind
Are you hungry?

Do you know what to eat Floating in the blue I hear you your voice It comes out above my head Close to you, close to you

There is one bird in my house
She said you woke up from a dream
He heard Mama Cass
He felt better if I would have known (those) things
It damped his mood for a second
Then he remembered where he was
He regained his perspective
That felt a
Lot better

It gets much better
He laid down on his bed
With the front door open
And the sunlight
flooding into the room
He smelt tire
He laid back listening to a fly

He saw washing hanging In the sun He caught a fleeting glimpse of a man moving uphill pursued by a bus He saw a white church with a Three blue-domed roof A crucifix on the top And an ant walked Along the edge of his book He heard another bell And a (braying mustache(?)) And a moped started up Sounding like a chainsaw of tiny firecrackers And he smelled tire again A fly came dim Along the shaft of sunlight Coming through the open door He watched it cross the room And get halfway and then it Turned around and left, he laughed
