

Window Of Time

Upchurch

The world is a branch, I'm the midnight time with the universe mind
No dock too frigid for my ice-picked ice
I clenched so deep that your bones touched mine

And I've been watching you through a window of time
And I've been watching you through a window of time

Faces you've had on a path so long
And things you've seen but never have known
The bangs to the earth and the outer ozone
The deaths you've had with an age so strong

So tell me you still dream of
And maybe I will let you in

And I've been watching you through a window of time
And I've been watching you through a window of time

Waves inside my throat, bring you to a time
When windows had no blinds, truth was in your mind
Time was just a lie, see you in the next of line

And I've been watching you through a window of time
And I've been watching you through a window of time
And I've been watching you through a window of time
And I've been watching you through a window of time
