

Apocalyptic Destruction

Urgehal

...what if,

Milleniums ago a dying sphere bursted into a galactic explosion, and left a hole in space

Every single piece of the sphere made a rain of meteors and took it's own course

...one of them towards earth

Sands of time and vast dimensions away from earth

The meteors sourced through space at infernal speed

While the ages on our planet swept along like the oceans

In our second millenium a "prophet" discovered a galactic meteor

It had entered our galaxy, and would soon hit the earth

The humans was facing destruction, the whole world was in chaos

No man of astrologic knowledge has (ever before) discovered this gigantic nova

Who would bring us the apocalypse, all time was lost, nothing could be done

Who would ever believe a piece of stone from space would

Be our last grasp of view before our lids would be shut forever

Every single humanbeing faced the sky (in disbelief and shock)

When the meteor entered the atmosphere

Then destroyed the earth and killed all with a massive terrestrial strike