

Putting A Face To Fear

Us, From Outside

A panic sets in which can only be controlled by me
It is the lock
And is now searching for the only key
That will break this peace
That will shake this place
Everything is a catastrophe
I can't seem to move ahead and just keep my fucking calm

I know your life just flashed before your eyes
Are you gonna sit there and die?

You can't live your life afraid of what you can't change
So you must embrace today
Follow the words we speak
So let it go, and set your self free

I'm not myself
Yet it's all too familiar
A stranger in my body and he's all too familiar

Give me something to hold onto

Give me your hand to keep my feet on the ground
I promise to keep this, I promise to keep this now
Until we both fall back on our paths
And I'm a stranger once again

You can't live your life afraid of what you can't change
So you must embrace today
Follow the words we speak
So let it go, and set your self free

And now you know that there is nothing left to fear
There's a reason that I am still here

Back where I started
Nothing has changed
A proper conclusion
But I'll hold onto what was once real

We can't live our life afraid of what we can't change
So we must embrace today
Follow the words we speak
So let it go, and set your self free

And now I know that there is nothing left to fear
There's a reason that I am still here
So I will breathe easy
For the chances I take will not keep me awake

As I count down to the final moment
It's safe to say
It'll come back in a different way