

Blind

Vagrants

I know just what you're thinking somethings wrong
The winds of change are blowing and they're just too strong
Been here so long, our faces drawn but now it's not enough
We speak in tongues

I would blind myself
Before I ever saw the truth
Tear out my eyes
And try to look for something new
I would blind myself
Before I saw the truth

We could just stay blind
Ignoring the facts
There's no looking back
Even if we tried
Could it save us from that
And bury the past
We could just stay blind

It's true that severed ties could never hide
The stories told when we confide
A broken home, a wounded soul, failed to mend
Dismantled by our longing to pretend
We could just stay blind

We could just stay blind
Ignoring the facts
There's no looking back
Even if we tried
It couldn't save us
But could we bury the past
We could just stay blind

We could just stay blind
