

Somewhere I Belong

Valencia

The dust is settling as I lie here
It was a subtle hint of what went wrong
I've been giving up, giving up
On every plan I've made
I'm finally waking up, but just a little too late

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slipped somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane, to somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong

I don't know who I am or how I got here
But I'm a subtle hint, the best forgotten
You'll never know, never know what this boy could have been
I guess I finally figured out

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slipped somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane, to somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong

Struggling to find my feet
But just in time to watch the sea wash away all memories of you

Been giving up, giving up
On every plan I've made
Finally waking up, but a little too late

My life has always been a dead end street
With heavy eyes that shoot through me
I slipped somewhere in between what's right and wrong
And now I drown with every breath I take
I'm sick of feeling like I can't escape
I'll get out before I go insane, to somewhere I belong
Somewhere I belong
