

The Other Ones

Van Canto

All have come heeding the call Gathering secretly while kingdoms fall Drawing new borders by mountains as tall
As our gods had once created them in mighty halls

None shall ever take our faith away

We are the other ones
unique and united
We are the other ones
those who will succeed
We are the other ones
strong willed and delighted Once more we return to be:
The other ones

We leave for place we'd once called our own Until this our fortress away have been blown By forces that banished us to the unknown Still we are the strange outsiders but we're not alone

Roaring thunder, wind and rain Whirlwinds are at our side, there to remain none shall ever banished us again

We are the other ones
unique and united
We are the other ones
those who will succeed
We are the other ones
strong willed and delighted
Once more we return to be:
The other ones

Now that i know this will not end
I do understand that i am alone
But then we are more than just one We are all but conform still wondering on
We are the other ones

We are the other ones
unique and united
We are the other ones
those who will succeed
We are the other ones
strong willed and delighted
Once more we return to be:
The other ones

We are the other ones
unique and united
those who will succeed

Once more we return to be:

Now tht all have come
This last day has begun
And by the rise of the thousand suns
We know what we'll become:
The other ones
