Fireroses Dance

Vanden Plas

One day, when the fires eat the lands And the widows start to dance Then it shows all the beauty In just one day

Why is it ever too late and why, is it ever Why is it ever too late and why, is it ever Too late

See the beauty of the world For a second just a glance One day when the fire roses dance

One day when I am crying for this song Now it's written to the end I could save all their children In just one day

Why is it ever too late And why is it ever too late

See the beauty in the world In a clear vermilion sky One day feels like indian summer Lose the beauty of the world So in common with the dying One day When the flame of innocence Let's the fire roses dance

Missa ignis, missa ultoris Missa presteris et saltatus

See the beauty in the world In a clear vermilion sky One day, one day

Plant the trees to cut them down Burn my city to the ground Count seconds - steal the time Waste your words to build a rhyme For all holes in me to fill I need the newborn lives to... Pray my true amens After fire roses dance
