I know we said back then, and it doesn't matter when
But, I wonder if we both can still be friends again

Cold December was lonely without you
I still recall that moment vividly
I sat under a rotting willow tree
A year we spent making our memories
But, I still thought of the promise we agreed to keep

If things don't work out, and our love comes to an end
And the darkest days have come again
Let's say, we'll give it some time and
I'll write about how
I still think that you're a friend

So, even though our time is over
We still have our memories to reminisce on
I hope both of us can grow
And I hope that you can find new love

Cold December was lonely without you
I still recall that moment in my room
I sat praying that I wasn't hurting you
A year we spent making our memories
But, I still thought of the promise we agreed to keep

If things don't work out, and our love comes to an end
And the darkest days have come again
Let's say, we'll give it some time and
I will think about
How I still want to be friends

So, even though our time is over
We still have our memories to reminisce on
I hope both of us can grow
And I hope that you can find new love

The day we called it quits
I felt so empty so I didn't tell a soul about it
I truly could not admit
I wasn't okay, and it wasn't healthy
To date in such a state
So, breaking up was fate

Thus, after months of silence
And we've both had time to reflect on back then
With a bit of guidance
We were ready to speak once again

So, even though our time is over
We still have our memories to reminisce on
I know both of us have grown
And I hope that we can find new love

Y'know, I still stand by my words
The ones that I had said back then
I'm glad you're still my friend

So, let's keep singing 'till the end
