

I'll Understand

Vern Gosdin

How can you be too blind, to read between the lines
Why can't you see the storm ahead that's slowly movin' in
To your blue skies

He tells you he's your rock, and you can lean on him
While he builds you castles in the sand
And writes your lovely name upon the wind

Why did you have to fall
Why did you have to call
And tell me all about your lives together
Like there's nothin' wrong at all

He makes you believe
His love will never end
While he builds you castles in the sand
And writes your lovely name upon the wind

When his castles fall, and your name disappears
If you call on me
I'll take your hand

When loneliness moves in
You're gonna need a friend, to dry your tears
And understand

I'll understand

When his castles fall, and your name disappears
If you call on me
I'll take your hand

When loneliness moves in
You're gonna need a friend, to dry your tears
And understand

I'll understand

Oh, I'll understand
