

Own Yourself

Verzache

Wait, how important is what?

Would you say that social media is to developing your sense of uniqueness?

I honestly think that, I love so much shit, I love so much artistic shit, I make so much artistic shit but, I don't post a lot of it because, I don't know honestly

I mean because I'm scared of all these followers that I've had for years and their opinion

But people have been following for like ten years

And I've changed

But that's part of the journey

It is

To own yourself and you know putting that fear aside, putting that fear of what people think of you

If this is a time where you're thriving and you're making things and you have ideas

I think that people will be appreciative

The right people

The right people but its like you dont need the ones that dont

I think that's what's important about social media too, is like it breaks down the barrier of distance and proximity

So what was the first question you asked, how important is what?