

Breaking And Entering

VETO

Take out all the windows
we take all the things
you have no use for tear down all the brick walls
we take all the things
you have no use for

Into all the deep thoughts
we take all the things
you have no use for
in the back of your mind
we take all the things
you have no use for

Hold on, hold your horses there's a big wall that we can't breach and there must be a dark place and there must be things that we cannot reach

We take all the things
you have no use for